YOUNG FOLKS' COLUMN.

DEVOTED TO THE ENTERTAINMENT
OF GIRLS AND BOYS.How Peanuts May Be Transformed Into Fanciful Characters by Sticking Pins
and Matches Into Them and Adding
Bits of Wax and Tissue Paper.

There are medium sized, commonplace peanuts, like some of the ordinary persons one sees every day, and out of which nothing can be made, and there are short, pudgy, self important looking peanuts, and round, fat little peanuts that look like the wee, wee pig that couldn't get over the door sill. Then, too, there are graceful slender peanuts, with elegant figures, resembling genteel ladies with their skirts tightly tied back, some wearing bustles and some wearing none. If you want to turn a pile of peanuts into fanciful objects, such as hunchback men, pigs, babies in long clothes, and old women in caps, get your pen and ink, a little wax, some pins and matches, and prettily colored tissue paper.

Do you want to make a Mother Hubbard—such a one as is shown in the cut? Then select a slightly wrinkled peanut. Touch up the features of the old lady on the bulbous end of the nut. Next sharpen two matches, and stick them into her roly poly body for legs, then spur her up with two pins for arms, and there she will stand before you a weazen old woman, with a slightly bilious complexion and shrunken limbs, but an old woman capable of being improved by dress, as most women are. Therefore fashion her a gown and bonnet out of tissue paper, and as she would hardly be complete without hands and feet, a little gum properly placed will supply these missing members.

MOTHER HUBBARD—HUMPTY DUMPTY.

A short, thick set peanut, provided with arms and legs, and pen-and-ink sketched features, as already directed, requires only a tall paper cap to transform it into a Humpty Dumpty. With the foregoing directions, and the models borrowed from The New Orleans Piousness, bright boys and girls can readily multiply these peanut creatures into a numerous and interesting family.

Little Hi Pon Tush.

Little Hi Pon Tush is a jolly Chinese boy, and he came to our shores when he scarce could walk.

But now he has grown to a chubby, laughing lad, a lively young sprout from the oriental state.

And he says, little Hi Pon, "I am a Chinese boy."

"I now speak like some famous Chinese talk."

Young Hi yellow hair handles "washee washes" and "chickie."

The older Mr. Tush runs a laundry shop, you know.

While Mr. Tush prepares the "Flowery King" stew.

An art also learned in Hong Kong many years ago.

But they sometimes say they yearn to return to China.

And live in a junk on the River Hoang Ho.

Little Hi plays all day with the "Mellon" boys, and don't care a snap for the land of tea and rice.

But he says with a laugh that shakes his twisted nose,

"I snap-thinks chicks taste better than lats or or rice."

And the home of the fow is much good enough for me,

For George Washington's land is better, better nice."

The Ring Game.

All present must leave the room with the exception of one person, who then places a heavy finger ring in some fairly conspicuous place, so that the entrance of the others the object is to find the ring, but instead of exclaiming when they see it each person that does so quietly sits down without speaking. The last person to find the ring, or the one who cannot do so, has to pay a forfeit of five, or whatever may be previously settled, and to be the next person to hide the ring. Braces or gilt candlesticks, clocks, brackets, etc., are good places on which to place the ring, and the same game may be likewise played with a thimble. It is droll to see those who have perceived the ring quietly sitting down, and the eagerness and despair of those who fail to see where it is.

The Donkey and the Gosling.
One morning in June, a very hot day,
A donkey was quietly munching his hay,
When he lifted his voice and began to bray.

A gosling who lived in the farmyard nigh
Happened just then to be passing by,
And thought it a vulgar way to sigh.

"My dear sir," said she, in some surprise,
"How can you make that terrible noise?
It's worse than the shout of a dozen boys."

"Do express your thoughts in a quieter way,
Or if you even ventured to neigh,
It would not be so bad as that horrible bray."

"You mother the old ewe's donkey can draw;
Your father a rascal's truck once overhauled;
So what can one expect from a donkey like you?"

She delivered her speech, and then waited in vain,
The donkey had turned away in disdain;
But after a minute he thus spoke again:

"No doubt you expect me to make some excuse;
To whom are you speaking?" said he,
"Oh, that I can very soon tell you," said she.

ALL AROUND THE HOUSE.

Notes on a Variety of Things for Use and Ornament in a Cozy Home.

A portiere or curtain made of buckeyes strung on waxed thread, after the manner of the Japanese bead curtains, furnishes a very rich and handsome hanging.

One of the daintiest sheer draperies for cottage windows is embroidered on tulle or muslin. This comes by the yard in narrow width for sash curtains at from twenty cents upward.

The newest house linen has a broad hem, edged with more or less wide hemstitch and water work. The bed outfit, sheet, pillow slips, towels and toilet covers should all match.

Ladies disposed to construct various articles in pasteboard may beautify the surfaces and give these a solid appearance by coating them, says The Decorator and Furnisher, with a bright mother-of-pearl appearance use a concentrated cold solution of salt with dextrine, laid on with a brush—the cardboard being first sized. Other beautiful hues may be obtained from sulphate of magnesia, acetate of soda and sulphate of tin.

What to do with the shells gathered at the seashore is easily solved as follows: Having washed them free from sand and dirt, put them in a basin and pour a little muriatic acid upon them, following this with about two-thirds as much water. In a few minutes take them out of the acid and wash in clear water, and rub with a bit of soft flannel. Then polish with sweet oil and pumice stone, and finish by rubbing with chamois skin. Fresh water shells are bleached by putting them in a chloride of lime solution and letting them stand in the sun, after which they can be polished as above.

How to Put Up Jelly.

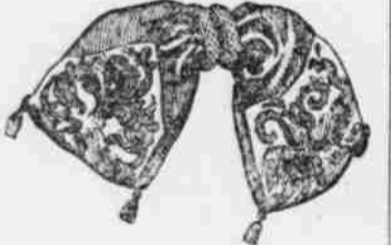

When jelly is cold and firm cut a round of white paper to fit the top of the glass, and dip it in the beaten white of an egg. Press it down close to the jelly. If it lines the side of the glass an eighth of an inch it will do no harm. Over this place a layer of smooth white cotton batting, fitting it closely to the glass. Absorbent cotton is best, but common cotton batting will do if the jelly is firm. Over all paste a round of paper, or paper dipped in white of egg. Be sure the jelly is stored where mice cannot nibble the paper and eat the jelly. Again, pour over the jelly a layer of melted paraffine, melted, but not hot, just warm enough to run. It will harden rapidly. Then paste over the glass a round of soft paper. When the jelly is used, melt the paraffine and save all the following year. Mrs. Hester M. Poole, who is authority for the foregoing, says that where paraffine is used a few drops of glycerine in each ounce will prevent the label from curling up or dropping off. It is equally efficacious for marmalade.

Green Grape Marmalade.

Green grapes make good pies, also excellent jelly and marmalade. For the jelly more sugar must be used than for ripe grapes. For marmalade remove the seeds from six pounds of unripe grapes, and throw the latter into a saucepan of water over the fire; as soon as they swell lift them off, add a little lemon juice, and let them stand by the side of the fire till quite green; then turn them into an earthenware pan and let them cool. When cool rub them through a sieve and replace them over the fire to dry; then add five pounds of sugar, clarified and boiled to the "crack"; stir it in well, then set it again on the fire till the right consistency is reached, when it must be put into pots and covered.

A Pretty Shopping Bag.

The purse shaped receptacle shown in the cut is a convenient bag either for fancy work or for shopping purposes. The material used may be plain plush, Roman sheeting or cashmere.

SHOPPING OR WORK BAG.
It is ornamented at each square end with applied pieces of embroidery or antique brocade, the trimming being applied in different shapes on the two ends, and finished off at each corner with chenille and tassel tassels. Ivory or gimp trimmings are used.
